7. OBJETIVO GENERAL DE LA ASIGNATURA

This course is intended to provide a thorough grounding on contemporary work on English Grammar, from a Cognitive Linguistic perspective. It gives a comprehensive, descriptively adequate and explanatory account of core issues in grammatical theory, which regards the issue of correspondence between grammatical organisation and conceptualisation as a central one. The aim of the course is to build critical awareness of the complex issues associated with the formulation of grammatical descriptions that felicitously reflect language's relevance to the humans' mental capacity of constructing meaning.

8. OBJETIVOS ESPECÍFICOS DE LA ASIGNATURA

- i. Present the student with a set of grammatical phenomena in English, whose felicitous description is of core significance for contemporary grammatical theory.
- ii. Familiarise the student with the theoretical framework to which the analysis of these phenomena pertains, its conceptual and empirical scope, its relevance to contemporary inquiry into linguistics at large, and the descriptive and analytical tools implemented in the grammatical analysis.
- iii. Draw systematic correspondences that hold between grammatical categories and conceptualisation.
- iv. Become familiar with the scope, aims, descriptive and analytical tools of contemporary grammatical theory.
- v. Increase critical awareness of the various theoretical and empirical problems underlying the analysis of grammatical phenomena.
- vi. Appreciate the intrinsic relation between structure and meaning and between theory and linguistic data.
- xii. Obtain the ability to independently draw systematic correspondences between data pertaining to distinct levels of descriptions, such as lexical or phrasal structure and the corresponding conceptualisations.
- xiii. Get a sufficient grounding in grammatical analysis that will enable the student to cope better with advanced modules on grammatical analysis, which presuppose background knowledge in this area.

9. SABERES / CONTENIDOS

- i. Defining language. What is special about it? Linguistic knowledge and cognition. Language modularity and universality of cognitive traits.
- ii. Language and Grammar. Form and meaning. The architecture of grammar as a human capacity. The significance of grammatical meta-language. Theoretical and empirical problems associated with grammatical descriptions.
- iii. The basic units of grammatical description. Lexical vs. grammatical categories. Grammar vs. Semantics. Linguistic meaning vs. Conceptualisation. Semantics vs. encyclopaedic knowledge.
- iv. Grammar and linguistic signification. Grammar as a meaningful schematic representation. The symbolic thesis on language.
- v. Lexico-grammar as a continuum.
- vi. Grammatical categories as conceptual categories.
- vii. Grammatical categories on a continuum of construing potential.
- viii. Nouns and Verbs. Parallels and differences.

- ix. Lexical and grammatical perfectivity. The MASS/COUNT-IMPERFECTIVITY relation.
- x. Adjectives and Adverbs. Processual and non-processual relations.
- xi. Grammar as a structured inventory. The nature of grammatical rules and constraints.
- xii. Phrasal composition. Compositionality and conceptual integration. The notions of Trajectory and Landmark.
- xiii. The symbolic thesis and the various degrees of grammatical complexity. From phrases to clauses and beyond.
- xiv. Phrasal integration: dependent and autonomous elements, profile determinants and site-elaboration.
- xv. Phrasal integration as instantiation.
- xvi. Phrasal integration as extension.
- xvii. Nominal Phrase Structuring.
- xviii. Clausal Structuring: Subjecthood, Objecthood, Agents, Themes.
- xix. Rules and constructions. Constructions as networking within the structured inventory of Grammar as a whole.

10. METODOLOGÍA

To the end of achieving the aims and objectives as outlined above, this module is organised around the following axes: in-class lectures, in-class analysis and discussion, off-class activities and a final preparation of an essay on a prescribed subject. The latter is designed so that in practice it familiarises the student with the methodology, organisation and presentation of research-oriented work. The weekly program comprises a three-hour session divided into two parts. The first one is devoted to the analysis, discussion and development of themes that have been given to the students as material for off-class practice. The second is devoted to introducing new material and empirically analysing data. The students are required to prepare the assigned material and actively participate in its analysis in the class.

11. METODOLOGÍAS DE EVALUACIÓN

- i. In each lecture, activities in the form of grammatical analysis and development of small scale self-contained themes will be given to the students for preparing them as an off-class work assignment. The students are required to bring along the work they have come up with and actively participate in its presentation in the session devoted to practice. Meeting this requirement occupies a 20% over the whole mark.
- ii. A small essay on a prescribed subject (a critical analysis of a theoretical or empirical issue or a thorough and comprehensive analysis of a grammatical phenomenon or clausal data). This is assessed with a maximum participation of 80% over the whole mark.
